COLLEGE HOME ECONOMICS STUDENTS PREPARE FOR A LIFETIME CAREER

Virginia girls enrolling in home economics college courses this fall have the unique advantage of starting preparation not only for lucrative and interesting jobs but also for the lifetime career of homemaker which every girl in her heart desires.

"The wealth of training available in home economics prepares these girls for almost any future that awaits them—in a business capacity and in successful homemaking," said Miss Ruth Jamison, president of the Virginia Home Economics Association this week in announcing a new public relations program being launched by the Association.

Heading up the continuing news service of these opportunities in the field awaiting any girl whether she seeks a professional career only, or combines it with that of homemaking, or becomes a full-time homemaker, is Mrs. Mildred T. Tate, Blacksburg.
